

How to get to INAOE

Transportation from Mexico City airport to Puebla

The standard arrival point into Mexico for our visitors is the Mexico City International Airport. There is a comfortable bus service operated by "Estrella Roja", which runs from Mexico City airport to Puebla roughly every 30 minutes. The schedules and one way fares (in pesos) are shown below. These buses leave from an area between the National and International Arrivals, crossing a covered bridge on the upper floor of the airport. The tickets are paid at a ticket office located above the bus departing zone. The journey takes about two hours. Buses departing mainly on the hour (6:00, 7:00, ...) arrive to the main bus station of Puebla (CAPU), while those departing mainly on the half-hour (6:30, 7:30, ...) arrive to "4 Poniente" station, located near downtown, and closer to INAOE. We strongly advise you against taking taxis from Mexico City airport to Puebla as the fare will be very high (>$1200).

Transportation from Puebla to INAOE

If you arrive in Puebla at “CAPU” or at “4 Poniente”, we recommend that you take a "taxi autorizado" to INAOE, which has a regulated price. There are several kiosks inside CAPU and one inside 4 Poniente to buy the tickets to these taxis, all labeled "taxis autorizados". The ticket to Tonantzintla is between $80 and $100, depending on the hour you take the taxi, and the ride takes about 30-40 minutes. Inform the driver that you wish to go to "El Antiguo Observatorio" in Tonantzintla.

Transportation by car to INAOE

You can find below a map of how to drive from Mexico City to INAOE.

Accommodation at INAOE

If you are staying at the residences of INAOE you should give your name at the main entrance of INAOE and you will be given a key to your room (a map of INAOE is shown below with pointers to the main entrance and the bungalows).

Other useful information

Food: Food in Mexico is a bit spicy, so be careful (you have been warned). We strongly recommend you not to eat food sold in the streets. In restaurants the waiters expect to be tipped with 10% of the price.

Water: The water supply is not potable. You can buy bottled water in shops.

Money: you can withdraw cash from most ATM machines and pay with credit card in most restaurants, so you do not need to carry a lot of money with you. Usually the best exchange rates are at the Airport.

Registration: Registration will take place just outside the “Auditorio Docente” (see map below). Please be sure to bring your student ID.

Recomendaciones de viaje:

Se aconseja llegar al aeropuerto de la Ciudad de México, de ahí tomar un autobús hacia la Central de Autobuses Puebla (CAPU).

Una vez que se ha llegado a la CAPU, tomar únicamente los taxis autorizados por la misma central (taxis color amarillo) y no los del servicio público general (taxis color negro o verde), esto por cuestiones de seguridad y precio.
